When we first brought Marley home, he was a tiny puppy with oversized paws and endless energy. He fitted into our hearts in the blink of an eye, becoming a part of our daily routines. (16)

Every morning, Marley would wait by the door, his tail wagging back and forth, eager for his walk.

"Marley, you always know how to cheer me up," I said one morning as I put on his leash. He looked up at me with his big eyes, as if he comprehended every word. Despite his mischievous nature, Marley had a knack for finding the most comfortable spot in the house, usually our favourite (17)

couch. His playful antics and boundless enthusiasm brought both chaos and joy to our lives. (18)

Marley was undeniably clumsy, often knocking over vases and scattering newspapers around the house. (19)

Yet, in the evenings, he would curl up beside us, breathing quietly, offering a sense of lasting companionship that words couldn't describe. Through all the ups and downs, Marley remained by our side, teaching us about loyalty and love. (20)

The text below shows a poster for a chocolate product.

Chocolate: The Delicious Superfood
Did you know chocolate is packed with antioxidants and essential nutrients?
Studies suggest it can boost heart health, support brain function and even improve mood!

Treat yourself without guilt!

Enjoy the benefits of a superfood and the taste of a popular snack!
Among ChocoHealth's products, our premium dark chocolate made with 100% natural ingredients is our bestseller!

“ Best Taste ”

“ Maximum Benefits ”

PROMOTION
Spend a minimum amount of $60 at any Chocohealth store to get $20 off your next purchase!

Text 2

The extract below is taken from an article on chocolate in a health magazine.

Chocolate is increasingly being promoted as a health-boosting superfood. While dark chocolate does contain compounds linked to health benefits, the overall effect of chocolate depends on various factors, including cocoa content, added ingredients and portion size. The truth is that most chocolate products contain high levels of sugar and fats, which reduce or even cancel out any potential health benefits.

Claims about the health benefits of chocolate often lead consumers to believe they should eat chocolate regularly. Unfortunately, those claims largely result from studies on pure cocoa, not the processed and sweetened forms of chocolate commonly found in retail stores. Marketing tactics also influence consumer perception. Some promotions sell the idea that consuming more chocolate leads to greater health benefits. These messages can mislead consumers.

For each question from 21 to 25, choose the best answer. Shade your answer (1, 2, 3 or 4) on the Optical Answer Sheet. (5 marks)

21. According to the poster in Text 1, which of the following is true?
- (1) ChocoHealth only produces premium dark chocolate.
  - (2) Chocolate offers both physical and emotional benefits.
  - (3) Only natural ingredients are used to make chocolate.
  - (4) The promotion allows customers to get $20 off on the spot.
22. The writer made the statement, "Chocolate: The Delicious Superfood", in Text 1 to _____.
- (1) draw attention to chocolate
  - (2) spark interest in superfoods
  - (3) give an example of a superfood
  - (4) make chocolate more appealing
23. Based on the poster in Text 1, which of the following best fits the chocolate you expect to eat?
- (1) raw
  - (2) sweet
  - (3) nutritious
  - (4) overpriced
24. "Treat yourself without guilt!" The pictures support this by giving the impression that ChocoHealth's chocolate _____.
- (1) has a pleasant taste everyone likes
  - (2) should only be eaten after a workout
  - (3) is a treat health-conscious people should choose
  - (4) does not contain any unhealthy ingredients
25. We cannot trust the way Text 1 portrays chocolate because Text 2 says _____.
- (1) consumers should eat chocolate regularly
  - (2) consuming more chocolate leads to greater health benefits
  - (3) most chocolate products contain high levels of sugar and fats
  - (4) chocolate is increasingly being promoted as a health-boosting superfood

Please note that the passage for Comprehension questions 66 to 75 in Booklet B is on page 8-9. You may now go on to Booklet B.

Refer to the passage below when you answer questions 66 to 75 in Booklet B.

Charlotte Wong, Victoria Primary School's chess 'grandmaster', had won so many competitions her trophies filled a cabinet in the school hall. However, she preferred playing chess online, where she could play without the pressure of her reputation, going by the nickname 'Chess Queen'. In particular, she relished the opportunities to spar with her online partner, 'Dragon Master', whose unique strategies always intrigued her.	5
That afternoon at the Chess Club, Mrs Lau, their teacher, introduced a new member. "Everyone, this is Rachel Chen. Charlotte, would you be her buddy?"
Charlotte nodded distractedly; her thoughts were on her unfinished online game with Dragon Master. However, as Rachel walked towards her, a pin on her school bag caught Charlotte's attention. It was gifted to all participants at the National Chess Championship last year. This new member seemed to have competition experience, unlike the regular new members. "Hi, buddy! Up for a game?" Charlotte asked, expecting to see the usual nervous hesitation of unskilled players. Instead, Rachel's eyes sparkled as she replied calmly, "That would be great." Charlotte thought she might have found a worthy opponent in Rachel.	10
Rachel's initial moves felt strangely familiar. As their game progressed, Rachel maintained a focused gaze on the chessboard and a relaxed posture, while Charlotte grew increasingly restless. She studied the board and planned her moves, knowing that one wrong move could prove fatal. She was biting her lip and tapping her foot under the table as she tightened her fingers around her queen. She made a decision and shifted her queen.	15
Without warning, Rachel whispered, "Checkmate in five moves." Charlotte's heart skipped a beat. It was the exact forewarning Dragon Master would type in their online chats. And Dragon Master was usually right.	20
Rachel then made an unexpected attack. Seeing the tricky move, Charlotte gave her opponent a small, genuine smile, then refocused on her game. Fortunately, she was able to counter it with a clever move of her own. Rachel locked eyes with the other and nodded approvingly. By the time they finished their game, Charlotte's mind was buzzing with questions about her mysterious new club member.	25
That night, Charlotte continued her online game with Dragon Master. However, her mind kept returning to Rachel's playstyle. She typed, "Made a new friend at the Chess Club today." Dragon Master replied, "That is what I love most about chess. The best wins in life don't just happen on the chessboard." Charlotte stared at those words. At her winning speech during last year's National Chess Championship, she had told all the participants that friendship mattered more than winning with that exact phrase. Suddenly, all the pieces fell into place.	30
At the next chess club session, Charlotte made it a point to observe Rachel's games at different tables. As suspected, Rachel started the game by moving her knights. It was Dragon Master's favourite opening move—the special knight move they had talked about so many times online. Charlotte was ready to confirm her suspicion.	35
"Would you like another game?" Charlotte asked. "Of course! I see you have been busy and haven't played a single game," Rachel replied with a knowing smile.	40
Footnote:  Queen and knights are chess pieces used in the game of chess.  Checkmate is a term players may say when they are about to win the game.

As they began to play, Rachel moved her pieces in that familiar pattern again. Charlotte felt her pulse jump with certainty. "Nice move, 'Dragon Master'," she said softly, just for Rachel to hear. Rachel's hand froze mid-move.

"Thank you, Charlotte... or should I say, 'Chess Queen'?" she chuckled. Charlotte widened her eyes in recognition before breaking into a beaming smile.

The old man rose slowly from his seat and opened the door. It was a guest _____ they had been expecting, a man called Frank.

The old man motioned Frank to the extra chair. The trio sat _____ the fire and chatted heartily. As _____ conversation veered towards recent strange happenings, the visitor dug into his pocket and fished out a dried, little monkey's paw. It was believed that a spell had been cast upon it so that three different men would _____ receive three wishes from it.

Curious, the old man asked what the previous owner _____ wished for. Frank replied that he did not know _____ the man had died. For his part, Frank said the paw had brought him nothing but trouble. His tone was _____ grave that a silence fell upon the group. Everyone was lost in his own thoughts, and no one spoke for a while.

By 8 a.m., we were at the foot of the hill, ready to begin our climb. My younger brother, Ben, was impatient and sprinted ahead of us despite our parents had told him

As we climbed higher, we were rewarded for a breathtaking view of the forest

We stopped in our tracks to let the group walk past us, and my father took the orpotuneity to remind us loudly to be considerate of others and to preserve the trankweelity of nature. The group of hikers seemed to have overheard what my father had said as the disturb from the blaring music was replaced by gentle chirps.

(42)

(43)

After about an hour of hiking, we reached the summit and took a snack break.

Just as we were laughing and chatting anematedly about unimportant things, the sudden apearence of dark clouds with strong winds signalled to us that a storm was brewing. So, we quickly gathered our belongings and began our descent.

Many people underestimate the value of a good night's sleep. _____ (46) hectic schedules and constant screen time, both children and adults often get too little rest. Sleep not _____ (47) helps the body to heal but also allows the brain to process new information. This is based on _____ (48) that have shown that students who are well-rested tend to learn better in school than those who are _____ (49) of sleep.

Despite these benefits, many children still go to bed late. Using devices just before bedtime can be especially _____ (50) to our sleep. The blue-light emitted from screens can _____ (51) with the body's ability to produce melatonin—a chemical that helps our bodies to _____ (52) asleep.

To sleep well, it's important to have a regular bedtime routine. This could include _____ (53) off devices at least an hour before bed, reading a book, or taking a warm shower. Parents can encourage good habits from an _____ (54) age. Experts recommend school-aged children get 9 to 11 hours of sleep every night. Lack of sleep can cause irritability, trouble focusing, and long-term health _____ (55).

In some countries, schools start later in the morning to help students get _____ (56) rest. This change has led to better academic results and improved well-being. Sleep also _____ (57) the immune system, so children who sleep well are less likely to fall ill. Doctors often advise patients to sleep more when recovering from sickness.

However, the _____ (58) of sleep is as important as its quantity. A person may be in bed for eight hours _____ (59) still feel tired if his sleep is frequently disrupted by noise, stress or discomfort. Having a calm sleeping environment helps. While many try to sleep more on weekends to make up _____ (60) lost rest, this does not undo the negative impact of ongoing sleep loss. Consistency is key to developing healthy sleep habits.
